

My Experience with the

Guided Imagery Programme

A personal reflection journal — for your use only

This journal belongs to you.

Nothing in it is submitted anywhere. No one else reads it. It exists to help you notice your own experience with the practices over time — not to measure you against a standard, and not to produce data for anyone else.

There are no right answers. A practice that produces nothing visible is still a practice. A week where you didn't return to the work is still part of your experience. Whatever is true for you is worth writing down.

You can fill this in as you go — after a session, at the end of a week, whenever something shifts or doesn't. Or use it in two sittings: once near the start of your time with the programme, and once a few months later. Either way works.

Where I'm Starting From

These questions are for the beginning of your time with the programme — or whenever you first pick up this journal.

1.1

Which practice or practices are you drawn to, and why?

1.2

What are you hoping might change — in your body, in your daily life, or in how you feel about your body?

1.3

What does your body feel like right now — in your own words, not medical terms?

Movement, sensation, comfort, tension, presence, absence — whatever comes.

How satisfied are you with the following areas of your life right now?

Write a few words for each area — not a number, but words. They say more.

Material wellbeing — the things you own and your material situation

Health

Achieving in daily life

Close relationships — family, friends, partners

Feeling safe and secure

Community — feeling connected to people beyond your home

Emotional wellbeing — your own sense of happiness

Spiritual life or sense of meaning

Your life overall

1.5

Is there anything you're worried or uncertain about as you begin?

What I'm Noticing

Use this section as often or as rarely as feels useful. Date each entry if that helps you track patterns over time.

Entry 1 of 6

DATE

2.1

Which practice did you use, and roughly how often have you been returning to it?

2.2

What have you noticed in your body — during the practice, or in the hours and days after?

Changes can be subtle, fleeting, or absent. All of these are worth recording.

2.3

What has the imagery been like — vivid, thin, changing, consistent? Has it developed since you started?

2.4

Have you been using the windows — the morning, evening, or daytime drift moments — for brief practice from memory? What has that been like?

2.5

Has anything felt wrong, uncomfortable, or like it made things worse?

If so, what, and when? This question appears at every entry because adverse effects tend to appear early.

2.6

Anything unexpected — positive or negative?

What I'm Noticing

Entry 2 of 6

DATE

2.1

Which practice did you use, and roughly how often have you been returning to it?

2.2

What have you noticed in your body — during the practice, or in the hours and days after?

Changes can be subtle, fleeting, or absent. All of these are worth recording.

2.3

What has the imagery been like — vivid, thin, changing, consistent? Has it developed since you started?

2.4

Have you been using the windows — the morning, evening, or daytime drift moments — for brief practice from memory? What has that been like?

2.5

Has anything felt wrong, uncomfortable, or like it made things worse?

If so, what, and when? This question appears at every entry because adverse effects tend to appear early.

2.6

Anything unexpected — positive or negative?

What I'm Noticing

Entry 3 of 6

DATE

2.1

Which practice did you use, and roughly how often have you been returning to it?

2.2

What have you noticed in your body — during the practice, or in the hours and days after?

Changes can be subtle, fleeting, or absent. All of these are worth recording.

2.3

What has the imagery been like — vivid, thin, changing, consistent? Has it developed since you started?

2.4

Have you been using the windows — the morning, evening, or daytime drift moments — for brief practice from memory? What has that been like?

2.5

Has anything felt wrong, uncomfortable, or like it made things worse?

If so, what, and when? This question appears at every entry because adverse effects tend to appear early.

2.6

Anything unexpected — positive or negative?

What I'm Noticing

Entry 4 of 6

DATE

2.1

Which practice did you use, and roughly how often have you been returning to it?

2.2

What have you noticed in your body — during the practice, or in the hours and days after?

Changes can be subtle, fleeting, or absent. All of these are worth recording.

2.3

What has the imagery been like — vivid, thin, changing, consistent? Has it developed since you started?

2.4

Have you been using the windows — the morning, evening, or daytime drift moments — for brief practice from memory? What has that been like?

2.5

Has anything felt wrong, uncomfortable, or like it made things worse?

If so, what, and when? This question appears at every entry because adverse effects tend to appear early.

2.6

Anything unexpected — positive or negative?

What I'm Noticing

Entry 5 of 6

DATE

2.1

Which practice did you use, and roughly how often have you been returning to it?

2.2

What have you noticed in your body — during the practice, or in the hours and days after?

Changes can be subtle, fleeting, or absent. All of these are worth recording.

2.3

What has the imagery been like — vivid, thin, changing, consistent? Has it developed since you started?

2.4

Have you been using the windows — the morning, evening, or daytime drift moments — for brief practice from memory? What has that been like?

2.5

Has anything felt wrong, uncomfortable, or like it made things worse?

If so, what, and when? This question appears at every entry because adverse effects tend to appear early.

2.6

Anything unexpected — positive or negative?

What I'm Noticing

Entry 6 of 6

DATE

2.1

Which practice did you use, and roughly how often have you been returning to it?

2.2

What have you noticed in your body — during the practice, or in the hours and days after?

Changes can be subtle, fleeting, or absent. All of these are worth recording.

2.3

What has the imagery been like — vivid, thin, changing, consistent? Has it developed since you started?

2.4

Have you been using the windows — the morning, evening, or daytime drift moments — for brief practice from memory? What has that been like?

2.5

Has anything felt wrong, uncomfortable, or like it made things worse?

If so, what, and when? This question appears at every entry because adverse effects tend to appear early.

2.6

Anything unexpected — positive or negative?

Looking Back

For whenever you feel ready to reflect on your experience as a whole — whether that's after a month, three months, or longer.

3.1

Looking back at what you wrote in Section 1 — what's the same, and what's different?

3.2

What does your body feel like now, in your own words?

3.3

Returning to the life areas from Section 1 — write a few words about each again.

Don't look back at what you wrote in Section 1 until after you've written this.

Write a few words for each area — not a number, but words. They say more.

Material wellbeing — the things you own and your material situation

Health

Achieving in daily life

Close relationships — family, friends, partners

Feeling safe and secure

Community — feeling connected to people beyond your home

Emotional wellbeing — your own sense of happiness

Spiritual life or sense of meaning

Your life overall

Now look back at Section 1. What do you notice?

3.4

What would you say to someone who was thinking about starting the programme?

3.5

What would you change about the practices, if you could?

3.6

Is there anything you want to record that doesn't fit any of the prompts above?

If you'd like to share any part of your experience with the programme — anonymously or with your name, as a brief note or in as much detail as you like — you're welcome to write to:

jeremy@livingbeyondsci.com or via the feedback page at livingbeyondsci.com/feedback

Nothing is required. This journal is yours.