

Your personal practice plan

A plan we shaped together in our first session – a starting point, not a prescription. Everything here is yours to adjust as you go. The free practices remain on the website for whenever you want them.

NAME

DATE

YOUR HEALING STYLE

How you tend to get through hard days shapes how this practice will best support you. Indicated by the questionnaire where you completed it, and confirmed together in our session. The one we settled on is ticked below.

☐

The Connected

You cope through relationships and being truly understood. Support works best when it is shared.

☐

The Analytical

You cope through clarity and understanding. Honest information and visible progress steady you.

☐

The Autonomous

You cope through agency and a pace of your own. Room to lead your own practice matters.

☐

The Visionary

You cope through hope and a picture of what is still possible. Imagery of the future carries weight for you.

HOW YOUR STYLE SHAPES THE PRACTICE

AREAS YOU'D LIKE TO WORK TOWARD

Beyond where we're starting, these are areas people with spinal cord injury most often say matter to them.

Tick any you'd like to work toward. Five of them have a ready-made practice on the site already; the others are directions we can work toward or shape imagery around over time.

MOVEMENT AND STRENGTH

☐

Hand and arm function

☐

Standing, walking, and mobility

☐

Trunk stability and balance

INTERNAL FUNCTION

- | | |
|--|---|
| ☐ Bladder function | ☐ Breathing and respiratory ease |
| ☐ Bowel function | ☐ Blood-pressure regulation |
| ☐ Sexual sensation and function | |

SENSATION AND COMFORT

- | | |
|--|--|
| ☐ Touch and body awareness | ☐ Easing spasticity |
| ☐ Relief from chronic or nerve pain | ☐ Restful sleep |

WHOLE-PERSON

- | | |
|---|---|
| ☐ Energy and fatigue | ☐ Calm, mood, and acceptance |
|---|---|

ANYTHING ELSE THAT MATTERS TO YOU

THE PRACTICE WE'RE STARTING WITH

The core practice we chose to begin with. You can always change it — the image that comes to you on its own is often more potent than one you have been told to use.

- | | |
|--|---|
| ☐ Hand and grasp | ☐ Sexual sensation |
| ☐ Bladder awareness | ☐ Spasticity softening |
| ☐ Bowel awareness | |

THE IMAGERY THAT WORKS FOR YOU

The picture, feeling, or words that landed for you — the one to return to.

YOUR DAILY WINDOWS

Brief moments when your nervous system is already receptive. A few breaths of returning to your imagery in any of these is doing real work. Tick the ones we agreed to try, and note what you'll do.

- ☐ The morning window
The first minute after waking, before reaching for anything.

☐

The evening window

The minutes between getting into bed and falling asleep.

☐

The daytime drift

The mid-morning or mid-afternoon lull when concentration softens.

YOUR NEXT STEP

One small, achievable thing to carry into the days ahead.

A NOTE FROM JEREMY

This plan is personal support for living well after spinal cord injury. It is not a medical treatment or a promise of physical recovery. Use it gently, at your own pace, and stop any practice if discomfort rises.